

WLOS located in the greater Asheville area fails to present a balanced news account of the area. It often disregards or fails to report on the events occurring in Madison County. Recently, during the ravages of the hurricanes, it had no reports about the situation in Madison County and the devastation visited on the people in this county.

Further, I understand that its owner, Sinclair, will be broadcasting an anti-Kerry "documentary" relating to Senatpr Kerry's First Amendment rights to protest an earlier abuse of US military force just prior to the election. I believe that this use (or should we say abuse) of its license is sufficient grounds to determine that WLOS is not operating within the bounds of its public interest mandate for the citizens of Western North Carolina.
